JESSIE NEWS.

Sure is some job doing the chores between showers these days.

Emil Retzlaff and Harry St John motored to McVilleville Wednesday.

J. D. Reid and family of Binford were guests of the J. W. Ressler family Monday.

Mrs. Hazard of Cooperstown was a visitor at the H. St John home, between trains Friday.

O. M. Rogney and Harry St John autoed to Aneta on matters of business Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Lena Hovel, with her cousin, Jack Donat, returned Wednesday from a holiday trip to Minnesota.

N. O. Haugen paid Jessie a short call on business matters Friday evening, making the trip in his new Hupmobile.

Miss Grace Olsen of Cooperstown, came up on Friday and is visiting with Miss Gertrude Watne for a short time.

Mr. and Mrs. A. V. McColin went to Fargo Tuesday to take in the fair and where Mr. McColin will attend to business matters.

It's as catching as a fire in a straw stack. We refer to the Ford. J. W. Ressler is the latest victim and sure enjoys all there is in the auto.

F. F. Tollefson of Wimbledon has returned and is once more busy at Mark's store. He spent about ten days at his home enjoying his vacation.

Rev. Grenier, the Catholic priest, who has been conducting the confirmation class at the church for the past week, returned to his home on Friday.

Mrs. W. L. Marks and W. L. M., Jr. of Jamestown, with Mrs. Simpson, of Wimbledon, came up for a brief stay, returning Thursday with Mr. Marks for home again.

The only reason apparently that there was any one left at Jessie last Sunday was because walking was poor. With almost no exception every autoist was at Red Willow.

In a talk with Jno. Detwiller he says that the hail took about a twenty five per cent toll off his barley crop. Mrs. Detwiller who has been very ill is improving rather slowly.

The N. P. Ry. crew are busy erecting fences along the right-of-way west of town. Part of the crew, however, felt the wanderlust bug and flew the coop for the Twin cities.

Miss G. Haugstad of Duluth arrived Tuesday to spend a couple of weeks visiting with Mrs. Thor Nelson and family. Mrs. Nelson and Miss Haugstad are old time school companions.

Mrs. Fred Schlinss is no better and the outlook is not at all encouraging. She cannot secure any rest owing to nervous troubles. She was taken to Cooperstown Wednesday for consultation.

Among those who went to the circus at Cooperstown yesterday are Mr. and Mrs. F. Tollefson, Mrs. O. M. Rogney, and the children and Miss Marion Rogney, who all drove down in Rogney's car.

If readers of The Times will kindly hand any news notes to the writer at any time before Wednesday it will be appreciated and will help make the Jessie news what we all want it to be.—Mac, at Rogney's Hardware, Jessie.

Hay making is being done, but only in spots here and there. The sloughs are too full of water at present to allow any concerted work to be undertaken. Some rust appears to be getting a foot hold in the grain fields but just how extensive is not known.

C. O. Johnson felt that the elephants at Cooperstown might want more water than the keepers could carry so went down on the afternoon train and will return when Golmar Bros. say good bye. The circus appears to have a drawing power as several from Jessie and vicinity left.

Ernest Rickford was taken to the hospital at Northwood Tuesday morning. He was taken seriously ill at midnight and it was decided that an operation was necessary and he was taken across by auto. The best wishes of all who know him are with him in his hour of trouble and we hope he may speedily recover his accustomed good health.

The Jessie All Stars ball team went to Hannaford on Thursday and played the home team on the Chautauqua grounds. The writer has not been able to get a coherent account of the fracas but we left our scalps at the belts of the Hannaford bunch. As to the score—charity draws the curtain. Our boys say they had a good time so we'll let it go at that.

Our friend, Julius Wurst, is rejoicing over the advent of a bouncing baby boy. He arrived Friday and soon made himself acquainted with all who met him. Julius will now be able to demonstrate his well known vaudeville talents in the wee sma' hours as he walks the floor with his lordship. We all join in extending to Mr. and Mrs. Wurst our hearty congratulations over the event, and trust he will make a husky Griggs county farmer.

Rev. Stinson of Cooperstown conducted services in the school house Sunday afternoon. While many were at the lake there was a good turnout. A very enjoyable service was rendered by the pastor, taking as his topic Paul's letter to the Romans. Jas. McCulloch drove to Cooperstown for the pastor and Mrs. Stinson and entertained them at their home after the services. The next service will be July 30th at 3:30.

One of our prominent citizens wandered into the tonsorial parlor, conducted by our friend, Fred Claus, and sat in the chair. Whether by a moment of abstraction or distraction in giving his order, is not known, but the result after Fred got thru was startling to say the least. At first glance it suggested an Indian raid or an old fashioned cyclone, but the prominent citizen says it feels fine. Only for the jibes, which would sure follow, others would follow his example.

A number of the young friends of the O. L. Anderson family gathered at their home Sunday for a goodbye party given in honor of the Twin city guests who have been visiting with them for some weeks. A bunch from Jessie were present and furnished their share of the evening's entertainment. Music, games and refreshments brought the good time to a close at an early hour. The young ladies left on Wednesday for their homes, with the exception of Miss Olivia Rollefson, who will teach at West Prairie for a short time.
