

"Gyp," L. P. Larson's pointer dog, has gone to the happy hunting ground. Last Sunday, Mr. Larson, with Aug. Evers, A. W. Ringlee and F. C. Boeckman, was hunting northwest of town, when "Gyp" came to a point. The view of the dog by the hunters was obstructed by a small hill and when they reached a point high enough to see, a chicken flew up and both Mr. Larson and Mr. Evers fired. The charge of one of the guns struck the dog in the head, killing him almost instantly. "Gyp" was considered one of the best hunting dogs in this country, and Mr. Larson feels the loss quite keenly.
