

Harry McCoy, who has been employed in the meat market here during the past four months, left for his home in Nebraska last Saturday. Mr. McCoy was a first-class butcher and Mr. Thorn, his employer, as well as the patrons of the shop were sorry to see him leave, but the business of the shop during the winter months is not sufficient to warrant having more than one extra man. Mr. Tjeltweet will remain in the employ of Mr. Thorn, and when business opens up in the spring Mr. McCoy expects to be back.
