McHenry Tribune: Mrs. N. O. Haugen was the victim of a very painful accident last Monday when all the fingers of one hand were crushed in the wringer of an electric washing machine. Dr. Truscott was called from Binford, Dr. LeBien of this place being out of town at the time the accident occurred.

Rumor has it that the Village Hall Injunction case which has been pending for practically ever since the time the hall was built, has been decided in favor of the old village trustees, by the Court.

Information reaches the Tribune that the King-Bruns Auto Co. has decided to build a substantial structure on the corner lot next to Boyd's theatre this fall and bids for the construction of the building of concrete are now being considered. The King-Bruns Auto Co. has done a good business in this territory, and the result is that they need more room and up-to-date buildings. This will be a substantial improvement for the village and the community, and the public may expect better service and an up-to-date garage, which is very desirable to have for the town and community.

A deal was closed this week whereby Erick Alme becomes the owner of the N. O. Haugen residence property in the southeastern part of the city. This property is one of the choice residence blocks and Erik will have a fine home for himself and family. Mr. Alme is one of the pioneers of McHenry, and judging by the deal made, has confidence in the future of McHenry and locality. While conditions at times were adverse and discouraging, Erik stuck by the "old ship" and instead of giving up to the billowy waves, he has piloted through in good shape and will now more than ever enjoy the comforts of a good modern home.
