
A Horse Apiece

Sentinel Courier: Attorney Ben Tufte tells the following story on himself:

He sent some papers to an officer to be served and with his usual care to prevent delay, designated where the officer should sign his name by writing in pencil, "Sign Here". The papers were properly returned and Ben sent the officer a check for his services. He was startled a few days later when the check came back with a penciled inscription at the bottom, "Sign Here." He had neglected to sign the check.
