

R. B. Vogen and family arrived here last week from Springwater, Sask., and have been visiting with Barney Vogen's, near Mose, and Binford friends. The Vogens left Binford six years ago for Canada, to take up a homestead and while they have had some hardships in those years, fortune has, at last, smiled upon them. They have acquired a section of good land a mile from town, and Ray holds down his old job of "wheat thief" in town, and drives home every night. He is the same jovial, old scout, just as fat and sassy as ever. Their many friends are pleased to see them again and hope that they will some day return to the good old U. S. A, and more particularly Binrord.
