

George King met with a sad misfortune Tuesday. He was burning around some straw after plowing a firebreak but the fire got away from him and destroyed about 70 tons of good hay belonging to C. E. Davie. George's friends sympathize with him—but that don't pay for the hay and hard work.