

Speaking of the growth of our little burg, one would say it is on the jump, to use a slang phrase. It barely seems possible that such rapid advancements have been made since the high snow banks melted away in the early spring.

Finley now has three large elevators, viz: Cargill Bros., Northwestern and the St. Anthony & Dakota, also a large loading platform. The farmer surely has no complaints to offer against our grain market. We also have three general stores and a hardware and machinery depot, a lumber yard, two livery barns, two blacksmith shops, one confectionery store, two hotels, postoffice, church, two wood and coal yards, land office and school house, and all are doing a good business. By this I do not intend to say that all of the room is taken. Plenty left.
