

While coupling two engines at Aneta last Friday, Brakeman Roberts met with a serious and painful accident. The heavy lid of the engine box, which, for some uncalled for reason, had a large rusty nail in it, fell upon his hand driving it through the fleshy part of the hand. He will probably be laid up for awhile.