

FIRE AT BINFORD.

The gasoline tank of the lighting plant in O. S. Gunderson's store at Binford exploded Tuesday night. It seems that the lights didn't burn well and Mr. Gunderson went back into the warehouse, where the lighting plant was situated, to try to remedy the trouble. The tank then exploded, for some reason or other, and set fire to the warehouse. The fire, however, was put out before much damage was done.

But this was not all. Alvin Alm, a boy seven years old, was in the warehouse when the explosion took place and he was enveloped in the flames. His 14 years old brother, Oscar, plunged into the fire and succeeded in getting him out. The little fellow was so badly burned, however, that he died the next morning. Those who are in a position to know all say that Oscar Alm did a heroic act in getting his brother out of the fire under the circumstances. A subscription list was circulated and about a hundred dollars was collected for this brave boy.

SUPERIOR METHODS

After being a student of another business college for six months, I entered Aaker's Business College, which I find uses superior methods more practical helps and is better equipped. I have had a good chance to make comparisons, and they are decidedly in favor of the A. B. C. It gives me great pleasure to recommend Aaker's Business College for rapid progress and satisfactory work. Glyndon, Minn. • Mattie Jones.

Found Guilty.

Edward Scott of Wimbledon was found guilty of murder in the second degree for the killing of Lars Anderson and the jury recommended that he serve 8 years at hard labor in the penitentiary at Bismarek as punishment for the crime.

Albert Olson who was with Scott at the time of the murder is also charged with the death of Anderson and his trial is now in progress at Valley City.

Lars Anderson, a farmer, lived north of Wimbledon and the morning of July 2, he and his hired man went to town with a load of grain. They reached Wimbledon before noon, unloaded the grain and went to dinner. After dinner at a restaurant they secured a case of beer and with five or six others went to an old building near the station and drank. They secured another case of beer and beer about supper time and drank this before 7 o'clock when they went to a restaurant and had supper. Afterwards they went to "Polack Charlie's" place. "Polack Charlie" had a place designated as a bowling alley and a number of men were gathered there and among them Edward Scott and Albert Olson. In the course of the evening's hilarity Anderson scuffled with either Scott or Olson and was thrown to the floor with violence. He arose and struck one or both of them.

Toward midnight Anderson and his hired man left to secure their teams at the barn. When they reached Moore's store they discovered three men following them. Shortly afterwards they were set upon and the hired man was knocked insensible and lay in that condition for several hours. Anderson was beaten and death resulted. His body was carried from there 1800 feet east to a position on the Soo track near the grand stand of the old race track.

During the evening Scott and Olson were twitted by companions with the blows struck them by Anderson and they made threats "that Anderson has a long ways to get home and we will get even with him yet."

About 10 a. m., July 3 the body of Anderson was found and doctors summoned. From the wounds and the position of the body it was decided it was impossible that he could have been run over by a train and killed.—Courtenay Gazette.

OBITUARY

Erik J. Austad died at his home in Hannaford on Wednesday morning, Jan. 15, 1908, after suffering for about three weeks with rheumatic fever which developed into heart disease with fatal result.

Erik Austad was born in Modum, Norway, and spent the first 26 years of his life there. In 1881 he and his brother Nils immigrated to this country and resided for two years at Baldwin, Wis. They came to Griggs county in 1883 and took homesteads in Bartley township. Deceased was secretary of the Hannaford Lutheran congregation and also of the Hannaford Temperance Society. He was interested in the Sunday school work and gave liberally both of his time and means to aid any deserving cause. He was an industrious and conscientious man, tended strictly to his own duties, offended no one, and in all his dealings was scrupulously honest. Of him it may truly be said that he had charity for all and malice to none.

Deceased was unmarried, and his only near relative in this country was his brother Nils.

Funeral services were held from the house on Friday, Jan. 17. The funeral sermon was preached in the church by Rev. Thoreson, a large number of the friends of the deceased being present. The remains were laid to rest in the St. Olavs cemetery at Walum.

COMMITTS SUICIDE

Lewis Brekke shot himself at his home near Walum last Saturday.

One of the saddest and most regretted tragedies that have ever occurred in this county took place last Saturday when Lewis Brekke, a farmer residing near Walum, committed suicide in his own home and in the presence of his wife and children.

About noon Saturday, the wife of one of the neighbors called at the Brekke home, and arrived just in time to hear Mr. Brekke declare he was going to take his own life. He ran upstairs and immediately the report of a revolver was heard. Help was summoned at once from Walum and the neighboring farms. When they arrived they found Mr. Brekke upstairs with a wound in his forehead inflicted by a bullet from a 32 calibre revolver.

It is stated that after Mr. Brekke fired the fatal shot he walked down stairs in search of a rifle and failing to find it he again went upstairs where he fell over exhausted. He remained conscious and was able to understand everything that was said to him, until he died about 3 o'clock Sunday morning.

The shot was undoubtedly fired in a fit of temporary insanity, caused by brooding over the ordinary cares and worries of life.

Mr. Brekke leaves a wife and two little girls. Two brothers also reside in this county.

The remains were shipped to Wisconsin yesterday, where interment will take place in the cemetery near Mr. Brekke's boyhood home.

John Broten's baby boy, about 9 months old, died last week, and Saturday, Dec. 7, the remains were interred in St. Olaf's cemetery at Waham. Rev. Thoreson officiating.

MRS. JOHN BROTEN.

Mrs. John Broten died at the hospital at Valley City last Friday morning from spinal meningitis. Deceased has been suffering for many years and tried almost all possible means to find relief but without result.

Deceased is a daughter of the late A. Gunderson of Walum. Her mother is still living. Her husband and one boy remain to mourn her departure.

The funeral took place Monday from the house of mourning where a brief service was held after which the funeral sermon was preached in the church by Rev. Thoreson, in the presence of a large number of the friends of the deceased. The remains were interred in the St. Olav cemetery.

The bereaved family has the sympathy of the entire community in their bereavement.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Brudwick Thursday. a child. The child lived only one day. The funeral was held Sunday.

Mrs. Bertha Bull passed away last Saturday morning, at her home in Ball Hill after having suffered for several months with a cancerous trouble. Deceased leaves a daughter, Jorina, and several step children. Her husband, Jens Bull, died about ten years ago. The surviving step children are Jens and Hans Jenson, who are employed by the Scandinavian American Bank in St. Paul; Mrs. O. M. Westley of Cooperstown; Mrs. O. Ashland of Ball Hill, and Julius Jenson of Sverdrup. A sister Ingeborg Soma also survives her. Mrs. Bull was an earnest, Christian woman, a member of the Baptist church. She was highly respected and loved by a devoted circle of friends.

ASPHYXIATED.

J. M. Dale and his son J. A. Dale of McVille, a new town on the Aneta extension of the Great Northern and 24 miles straight north of Coopers-town, met their death as the result of asphyxiation.

The Hope Pioneer says: The men are supposed to have died on the night of February 28, but the fact was not discovered until five days later. The younger Mr. Dale was to have helped a carpenter on the morning of the first of this month and when he did not appear a visit was made to his house. The door was locked but that did not excite suspicion as he had spoken some of making a visit to the country. After several days, however, as neither father nor son appeared and nothing was heard from them fears for their safety were aroused and the Commercial Club sent a committee to investigate. The door of the storm shed was broken in and the inner door found unlocked. Just inside the house was found the dead body of the younger man where he had apparently fallen in trying to reach the door. The older man had died in bed.

The bodies were taken to Minnesota for interment.

DROWNED.

Charley Dickinson, who is well known in Cooperstown and vicinity, and the wife of Geo. Jacobson living about eight miles north of McHenry, were drowned in the Sheyenne river north of McHenry near the reservation last Sunday afternoon. The Jacobsons and Dickinsons were on their way to the reservation where they were digging wells, and drove into the river at the usual ford to cross, but were swept away, only Jacobson being able to get ashore. Some of the horses were also drowned. The body of the woman was recovered, but up to Tuesday Dickinson's body had not been found.

A young man named Hensru, who carries the rural mail northwest of McHenry, lost his horse at the same place Tuesday, but saved himself and the mail pouch by grabbing a bush.—Sentinel.

LATER.—Wednesday evening C. O. Benson and J. Nicol who were searching for the body of Dickinson returned and reported finding the same. It was about forty rods down the river from where the accident occurred. There were no marks on the body to give any clue of how the accident happened.—McHenry Tribune.

OLAI FOGDERUD DEAD.

Word was received here last Tuesday that Olai Fogderud of Grassy Lake, Canada, died at the hospital in Lethbridge after being operated on for appendicitis.

Mr. Fogderud was first taken sick Sunday morning, April 25, but did not then think it anything serious. Wednesday evening, April 29, he was compelled to take the train for Lethbridge to seek medical aid. He was operated on at the Galt hospital for appendicitis on Thursday, April 30, at 10:30 a. m., the doctor declaring the case to be more than usually complicated.

His wife went to Lethbridge to see him on Friday, and he then did not himself expect to survive. Sunday evening, May 3, at 5:15 he expired.

Mr. Fogderud was conscious and could converse with those about him clearly and intelligently till the last. Some time before his last sickness he had been interested in securing a piece of land to be set aside as a cemetery for Grassy Lake, and when he felt that he was dying he expressed the wish that they should bury him there.

The funeral took place Thursday, May 7, the services being conducted by a Presbyterian missionary student, who was the only clergyman to be secured in the neighborhood of Grassy Lake. The town's inhabitants were all present to honor the memory of the deceased who had been one of the most enterprising and progressive citizens of the town.

Mr. Fogderud left Hannaford last December to take up his residence on his claim in Alberta. This spring he bought a quarter of land only one mile from Grassy Lake and resided on it until he was taken sick. His family spent the winter in this county, and had just arrived in Canada a few days before his last fatal sickness.

Deceased was born in Eker, Buskeruds Amt, Norway, Feb. 4th, 1872, and came to North Dakota in the spring of '88. He at once began farming near Hannaford and remained here until last fall. Mr. Fogderud was liked and respected by all with whom he had dealings, and genuine regret was expressed when it was learned that he had decided to move to Canada.

Deceased leaves a wife and 6 children, two brothers, Andrew and Ole, both of Hannaford, and a sister, Mrs. Swan, of Barrow, Wis. Mrs. Fogderud will remain in Canada until final proof can be made on the land.

A large number of the friends of the deceased will join the Enterprise in extending sympathy to the bereaved family.

REV. CHR. FORTHUN

Rev. Chr. Forthun, a nephew of Andrew Fortney, died at Ryder, N. D., last Tuesday, April 28, after having suffered for some time with rheumatic fever, though the immediate cause of his death was heart failure.

Rev. Forthun was a Lutheran pastor and had charge of a congregation at Ryder. Rev. Forthun will be remembered by Hannaford people as one of the speakers at the dedication services which were held in the Lutheran churches in this neighborhood last summer, and as he worked in this community for a while before he became an ordained minister, he was well known to the older settlers.

The remains were brought to this county for interment and the funeral was held last Sunday, Revs. Voldal, Thoreson, Jenson and Njust conducting the services; Rev. Voldal preached the funeral sermon; short addresses were delivered in English by Rev. Jenson and in Norwegian by Rev. Njust; after which the last rites at the grave were conducted by Rev. Thoreson.

A large number of people were present at the funeral services to pay their last respects to the memory of a good and faithful man.

GOODMAN KILLED

Geo. Goodman, a prosperous farmer living in section 15, Mabel township, met with a fatal accident last Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Mr. Goodman, who owned and operated a threshing rig, was threshing on his own farm and while trying to throw the belt from the engine was somehow caught and hurled against the front wheel of the engine, sustaining wounds on his head and body from which he died within a few minutes without regaining consciousness.

Dr. Leslie was immediately summoned from Hannaford and Dr. Brimi from Cooperstown but although they both arrived at the scene of the accident within an hour, the unfortunate man had already expired.

Deceased has resided in this county about 15 years. For a number of years he rented the Jack Nicoll farm but about six years ago he bought land of his own and at the time of his death owned 480 acres.

Mr. Goodman was a bachelor and about 50 years of age. Although he has lived in the community for so many years none of the neighbors know the whereabouts of any of his relatives. It is thought that his childhood days were spent in Pennsylvania.

The remains were interred on Friday afternoon at the Mildred Hartman Memorial cemetery, a large number of friends and acquaintances of the deceased being present to witness the last solemn rites.

Suicide at Binford.

Binford Times—Last Wednesday evening John Hagberg, a well known carpenter committed suicide by shooting himself through the head with a 32 caliber revolver. Financial difficulties are supposed to have caused him to commit the rash act. No one was in the house at the time, his daughter who was keeping house for him had gone to one of the neighbors. He was found lying up stairs in the above stated condition by Frank Poe who called at the house some time after the shooting. Dr. Truscott was immediately summoned, but nothing could be done to stay ebbing tide of life, and he expired a short time later. A FARMHAND SLAIN IN BARNES COUNTY.

Friday a shooting affair occurred in the northern part of Barnes county about eleven miles from this city, which resulted in the murder of Elmer Lewis, by his employer, Geo. N. McClure, at the farm of C. M. Padgett.

It is alleged by McClure that Lewis was unduly intimate with his wife and that yesterday the matter culminated in a quarrel in which Lewis was discharged. After being driven from the farm, Lewis went to the farm of Padgett and stayed over night.

That morning McClure took Lewis' trunk and other belongings, including a rifle, over to the Padgett farm. The quarrel between the two men was renewed and resulted in McClure shooting and instantly killing Lewis with his own rifle.

After the shooting McClure went to Dazey and gave himself up to Deputy Sheriff Ole Oppegard.

McClure came to Barnes county from Illinois some eighteen months ago and has been a tenant on the farm of Wm. Read of this city, who speaks very highly of him as an honest, industrious and sober farmer.

Lewis worked for him last summer and was hired again this summer. It is said his intimacy with this woman has continued some time. She is rather a handsome young woman and the mother of four children.

OBITUARY.

We are ever reminded that death once comes to us all. The young, the old, the rich, the poor, the wise and the unwise; all must hear the summons of this grim and uninviting messenger.

Mr. Alva Powers of Maple Ridge, Wis., came with his family to our village about two weeks ago. His intention was to stay here till after harvest then go out west and take up land. His plans did not materialize. His days were numbered and he peacefully passed away in the evening of August 4th. The cause of his death was dilation with incompetency of the valves, both mitral and tricuspid. He had been suffering for years from this ailment but the last attack beginning on Sunday, July 30, was so severe that he was practically strangled and choked to death.

Alva Powers was born June 6th, 1852, at Troupeburg Centre, Steuben Co., N. Y., and died August 4th, 1905, at Hannaford, N. D. He leaves a wife, a daughter, a grand daughter and two sons to mourn him. Providentially these were all here at his death-bed.

Mr. Powers was a Christian and child of God. He was a deacon in the Congregational church from whence he came, where he labored unceasingly to advance God's kingdom. He closed his days with the words on his lips: "It is peace." God took him and he passed to the great beyond to revel in the glory and to enjoy the presence of a risen Lord.

The funeral service was held at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon in the Presbyterian church, the sermon being preached by Rev. Bostrom. The remains were interred in the cemetery west of town. —B.

DIED.

Mrs. Qvamme, widow of Rev. O. K. Qvamme, died at Crookston, Minn., last Sunday. The funeral will take place Wednesday.

Mrs. Qvamme came to Coopers-town with her husband in 1886 and lived there until last spring, a year ago, when they removed to a farm in the neighborhood of Crookston. In June last summer Rev. Qvamme was killed by a horse. Since that time the deceased has been failing.

The news of the death of this pioneer worker comes as a shock to the many friends who had known and esteemed her in the days gone by. A number of children survive to mourn the loss of an excellent mother.

Last Sunday evening at 11:30 lightning struck the late Dan Sinclair's house. The main bolt entered through the roof of the kitchen tearing a hole of several square feet. A number of boards in the ceiling was torn off. The utensils in the kitchen were badly scattered and broken. A meat saw hanging on the wall was thrown clear across the room. It seems that secondary bolts struck the house at different places. The insulated wire from the nearest telephone pole to the instrument in the house has totally disappeared having probably melted by the fierce charge of electricity from the cloud. Marks after the dangerous visitor are found at different places on the house both inside and outside.

There were a number of people in the house at the time the lightning struck it. Fred, Willie and Andrew Sinclair were there; Jim Bothwell and wife and daughter; also Mrs. Church, Mrs. Sinclair and Edith and Sadie Sinclair. Andrew Sinclair was sitting near the kitchen door and received a slight shock; the rest were untouched.

It is needless to speculate on the consequences if the chief bolt had struck the other part of the house or if it had struck in the afternoon when the house was crowded by people attending the funeral.

DANIEL SINCLAIR.

Daniel Sinclair, one of the earliest and best known citizens of Griggs County passed away last Friday morning after ailing more or less for the last two years.

Deceased was born near Montreal, Canada, June 12, 1837. While he was still a boy, his parents moved to St. Marys, Ont., where they settled on a farm. In those days that was a wild region and young Daniel had an opportunity to hunt bear and other large game. When he was 26 he married and in 1863 he moved into the territory of Dakota and settled in the neighborhood of Sanborn. The following year Mr. Sinclair moved on his farm 4 miles north of Hannaford, where he lived until October last, when he moved into the house in town where he passed away.

A year ago last April deceased was kicked by a mule, and since that time he was confined to his bed much of the time. He was gradually sinking all summer until the last three weeks he could not leave the bed.

The funeral took place Sunday. Rev. Purinton officiated at the house and in touching accents spoke words of comfort to the bereaved family. A quartette rendered appropriate music. The remains were interred at the Cooperstown cemetery.

All the old friends and neighbors of the deceased came to the funeral and a long procession of mourners followed him to the last resting place.

A widow and seven children survive the deceased. Fred, the oldest, is in business at Portal; Andrew is a banker at Courtenay and James is cashier at First National Bank of Cooperstown. Wallace is on his farm near Hannaford and Will is in the machinery business at Hannaford. Edith is bookkeeper for a bank at Cooperstown, and Sadie has been teaching in the public schools of Minneapolis until this fall when she did not go back on account of the sickness of her father.

The bereaved family has the sympathy of the entire community in their bereavement.

PASSED AWAY.

Miss Bertha Stai passed away last Friday evening, March 8, 1907. The cause of her departure was consumption.

Deceased was the daughter of Lauritz and Agnes Stai, who live on on their homestead in Sverdrup township. Bertha was the oldest of their children and was born on Christmas Eve twenty-one years ago. The other children are Lena and Olga, who remain with their parents to mourn the loss of the departed.

The funeral takes place this afternoon, Tuesday. Rev. Henrik Voldal will officiate.

The bereaved family has the sympathy of all in this their day of grief.

T. D. STONE

Our well known and highly respected fellow citizen, T. D. Stone, passed away Christmas eve. The funeral took place last Sunday afternoon from the Union Church. Rev. Henrik Voldal preaching the sermon and performing the last sacred rites. A large number of the friends of the deceased attended the funeral.

Mr. Stone was one of the early settlers in this community. He came here with his family 19 years ago and for some time was hauling cream from the farmers around Hannaford to the creamery at Cooperstown. Later he took up a homestead one mile east of this village, where he has since resided.

He was born in Voss, Norway, about 55 years ago. His wife and five children, Eric, Jurina, David, Theodore and Anna, survive to mourn his departure.

Deceased had not been well for some time past, but the end came very suddenly, probably caused by heart failure.

The stricken family has the sympathy of all in this sad bereavement.

The body of a Syrian peddler was found in the Sheyenne river near the Ottawa bridge north of Cooperstown last week. His pockets contained about $50 in cash, but nothing could be found by which his name or home could be learned.

1 Christ Tang of Cooperstown died
2 last Friday. He came from Albert
3 Lea, Minn., a few days before to join
4 his brother Peter Tang, who lately
5 bought the City Bakery. On pack-
6 ing his moveables before shipping
7 them to Cooperstown, he scratched
8 his finger, from which the blood-
9 poisoning resulted.

A PIONEER GONE.

Lars Warberg died Wednesday October 4. Born in Eidfjord, Norway, 68 years ago, he came to this country in 1886 and settled on his homestead in western Bartley. Two daughters, Mrs. Syverson of Courtenay and Mrs. Evenson survive with the widow to mourn the loss.

Mr. Warberg was a hardworking and industrious man. He had many a hard struggle in the early days, but he lived to see prosperity come to him.

In all business dealings he was the soul of honesty and he was always ready to lend a helping hand to the needy.

Deceased had been more or less ailing for several months, but it was only the last few days that he was real low. The immediate cause of his death was cholera nostrum.

A large number of friends joined the stricken family as the departed was taken to his last resting place at the Eidfjord cemetery. Rev. Thoresen officiated at the funeral.
