

Mrs. Klein, mother of Rev. George Klein, pastor of the Free Methodist church north of town, was killed suddenly on Monday while on her way home from Crary where she had been filling her appointment. When about half way home the team ran away and she was thrown out and injured in such a manner that she only lived about four hours, dying before her husband or any of her relatives could reach her. She was cared for at the home of a farmer who saw the accident and everything possible was done for her but the injuries were so severe that she could not recover. Her adopted daughter and little child were with her and were also thrown out but escaped unhurt.
