

The Gazette was misinformed last week regarding the marriage of Miss Lena Albright and John Levanskofki and we wish to apologize to these worthy young people for the publicity which they have received. We got our information from a young gentleman who resides in the same neighborhood and supposed that he was reliable and trustworthy, but we have been mightily deceived. He has proved himself to be not only unreliable but malicious and unworthy of any dependence being placed on any statement he might make. He may think a matter of this nature a joke but we want him to distinctly understand that his idea of a joke is extremely coarse and vulgar and savors strongly of the snake in the one who perpetrated it. In the future his statements will be utterly disregarded so far as this paper is concerned.
