

At Cooperstown Mrs. Herbert Church narrowly escaped very serious injury caused by the children jumping on to bobsleds. Mrs. Church was sitting in the rear seat of the sleigh and the other members of the family were leaving town for home. Several young girls hopped onto the runners of the sleigh and in doing so grabbed the back of the rear seat, tearing the seat from its fastenings and throwing Mrs. Church violently to the ground, striking on her head and shoulders. She was picked up and carried to Mr. Furinton's office and medical aid summoned. It took some time for Mrs. Church to come to and it was feared that her injuries were serious, however, while she received a hard shock from the fall she will entirely recover in a few days.
