

Herb Flewell returned from the Canadian northwest on Monday morning after having spent a couple of weeks up there investigating farming conditions and comparing them with the prospects in this part of the country. He evidently was pleased with conditions as he found them for he purchased a half section near Vegreville, which is east of Edmonton in Northern Alberta. They have had a good crop in that country this year.