

Ed Wright had a narrow escape from what might have been a serious accident Monday afternoon. While driving over the railroad crossing he failed to hear an approaching passenger train and only some quick action of himself and his team saved him from being run over.