

FRANK THORP WALKER

DIED AT THE HOME OF JOHN WALKER ON THURSDAY EVENING, JULY FOURTH, OF PARALYSIS.

Frank Thorp Walker died at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Walker on Thursday evening, July 4th, after an illness of seven weeks from paralysis. He began to complain while seeding in the spring but he was ambitious to get his seeding done and did not think it necessary to give up work and consult a physician and continued working as long as it was possible for him to do so.

Frank Thorp was born at Spiritwood on April 6th, 1885, and when six weeks and four days old was adopted by Mr. and Mrs. John Walker and has resided with them since that time. He grew up to be a young man of excellent habits and noble character, ambitious and progressive, and few young men had a brighter future before them when the grim Reaper of Death called him from the active scenes of this life to the life beyond.

Besides Mr. and Mrs. John Walker who nursed him through his tender years with all the tenderness and love of father and mother and with that buoyant love and pride watched him develop into the noblest type of manhood, he leaves his mother, one sister, six half sisters and one half brother and his grandfather, Mr. Hart, of Mapelton, N. D., and a large circle of friends to mourn his untimely death. Two sisters are married and reside at Spokane, Wash., two single sisters also residing there, his mother and three younger members of the family residing at Kalispel, Montana.

The funeral was held on Saturday afternoon, the services being held in the Presbyterian church of Courtenay, Rev. M. S. Riddle preaching the sermon. Interrment took place in the Courtenay cemetery and the remains were followed to their last resting place by a large number of relatives and sympathisers of Mr. and Mrs. Walker who feel very keenly their loss.
