

Gem

Bert Waugh came from Courtenay to his homestead last week, walking most of the way. He returned again to Courtenay for a few days.

Masters Clyde Ferguson and Harvey Wilson went to Wimbledon and Courtenay recently for a few days' visit.

Cleaning seed grain and getting ready for spring's work is the order of the day.

The snow has gone sufficiently for stock to live without being fed hay.

Mrs. John Wells has been quite sick for the past week.

Mrs. B. A. Norris gave a dinner and sewing bee to the ladies of the vicinity on Friday of last week. The time was spent in social chat and sewing carpet rags.

The Ladies' Aid expects to meet soon and start the work of their society going. They will contribute their funds now on hand, about $8, to the Famine Relief Fund for China.

Calfee Williams was called to Blockton, Ia., by a telegram saying that his father was shot. He went immediately.

W. H. Glendenning was a business visitor to Medina Saturday.

W. L. King went to Jamestown on Wednesday of last week to attend to matters of business.

J. E. Coleman and family are expected soon to take up homestead life again after spending the winter visiting Mrs. Coleman's parents in Washington state.

Our democratic governor is doing some good work in making the "blind piggers to see," beginning with a firmness that will count for good to the cause of temperance. Long live the governor.