Journal, April 18—Attorney Coffey of Courtenay is attending to legal matters in town today.

Andrew Peterick and wife of Jamestown are spending a few weeks here looking after their farming interests and renewing acquaintance with their numerous friends.

Herb Croonquist returned last night from St. Paul, where he had an operation for appendicitis performed. His many friends will be glad to learn that his former health is fully restored.

The ball boys are anxiously waiting for more favorable weather so they can get to practicing, but even these chilly afternoons we can see them out getting their arms and hands in shape, which shows that they are of the right stuff and mean to play winning ball throughout the season.

Among a recent list of new corporations for which certificates have been issued by secretary of state Blaisdell we notice that of the Kensal Commercial Club. The incorporators are: Anton Feckler, P. O. Sletten, S. C. Shockley, F. A. Russell, O. E. Holmes, Anton Pederson, and H. A. Stinson.

The members and patrons of the Congregational church have extended a call to Rev. Kelley to remain as pastor of that church for another year. Rev. Kelley's work is appreciated, especially among the young people and children. A vote was taken Sunday after church and the unanimous vote showed the high esteem that is entertained for the pastor.
