

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Kerr left on Friday morning for Mountain Home, Idaho, where they will spend the winter. They are numbered among the old settlers in this section of the state and it is with regret that the people here see them leave. They have endured the hardships incident to pioneer life in the west and on account of frugal and thrifty habits and the general prosperity of the state they are enabled to practically lay down the burdens of life and spend the balance of their days in comparative ease and comfort. Their friends here are legion and one and all unite in wishing them the best that life affords no matter where they may cast their lot in the future.
