

served about midnight and after that ~~the~~ visitors returned to their homes. The incident of the ride out was an upset of one of the sleighs in front of Mr. Horn's residence in town. Fortunately no one was seriously hurt but one rather portly gentleman spent considerable time looking for a lost cane and finally found it the following morning—in his room, where it had been all the time. There is nothing like a little diversion to make people forget their ills—even their lameness.

---