

---

Sam Syvertson had the misfortune to injure his right hand while adjusting the storm doors last Friday. The step ladder on which he stood while at work slipped and his hand caught on the awning hook, badly lacerating that useful member and it required several stitches to have it dressed. Though the injury was a very painful one it is healing nicely.

---