

their new home.

While George E. Bouer was in Jamestown this week he found John Crawford looking for a marriage license and so badly scared that he was afraid to confront the judge and make his wants known and Mr. Bouer was prevailed upon to make the request for him. Even after the license was secured Mr. Crawford had not sufficiently recovered from the shock to muster up courage to ask the judge to tie the knot and it finally dawned upon him that he might have Justice Bouer do the job, as he was pretty well acquainted with him. Justice Bouer performed the ceremony and tied the knot so tight that he thinks there is little danger of its ever coming loose.
