Monday morning while Rudolph Nordin was coming to town with a load of grain he had a narrow escape from being killed. The morning being somewhat cold, he got off the wagon to walk and when he was ready to get on again he attempted to jump up and catch the top of the wagon box without stopping the team, but he missed his hold and the hind wheel of the wagon passed over him. He was brot to town and when Dr. Macdonald examined him he discovered that his face was badly bruised and one of his legs was broken and he was otherwise injured. It required several stitches to close the cut in his mouth and it is almost a miracle that he escaped with his life. He is now getting along as comfortably as possible but it will be some time before he will be able to be around.
