Mrs. Burt Sloan of Minot is visiting friends in this vicinity.

Mrs. McIntyre, sister of Mrs. Fred Zollner is visiting friends in this vicinity.

Mack Turner goes around wearing a beautiful black eye, the result of coming in contact with a horse's head. The head happened to be harder than the eye and Mack got the worst of the deal. This is the first time Mack ever had a black eye and he is naturally proud of it.

One of the most pleasant and happy events that has ever occurred in this vicinity took place at the residence of the groom on Wednesday of last week when Fred Zollner and Miss Mamie Tumleson were united in marriage by the Rev. Riddle of Courtenay who performed the duties of his office so rapidly that before Fred knew it he was no longer a bachelor. The bride is a young lady who is esteemed very highly by all who know her and she performed her part of the contract with coolness, but Fred was visibly affected. After the ceremony congratulations were extended and at 7:30 dinner was announced and the guests partook of a feast fit for a king. The feast was prepared by our respected friend, Geo. Johnston, the genial and pleasant proprietor of the Hub restaurant at Courtenay, ably assisted by an efficient corps of waiters, and for long hours they served oysters and turkey and cranberry sauce to a crowd of hungry visitors. Andy Crawford was head waiter and the way he handled the oysters and turkey was not slow. After everyone had eaten to his heart's content and sighed to think that he could not eat more, the tables were cleared and the evening was spent in conversation, singing and recitations. Upstairs the whist professionals of Courtenay contended for the championship, with a few farmers. As for the results, ask Father and Tom Stringer, they will tell you all about it. At one o'clock the people went to their homes wishing Mr. and Mrs. Zollner the happiness that is sure to be theirs and voting Fred an all around good fellow.
