

Wednesday John Rapp made six arrests of parties who were suspected to have robbed the Kensal jewelry store the day before, and temporarily incarcerated them in a box car on the track. A pal of theirs was suspiciously hanging around the car. Policeman Oxenrider politely warned him away whereupon the suspect drew a revolver and informed the policeman, who was unarmed, that he could take care of himself. Marshal Rapp was called who ordered the fleeing outlaw to halt. As the party kept on running the marshal shot at him. A lively little duel occurred in which Marshal Rapp discharged three shots, two of which were returned.