

A burglar entered the home of H. N. Tucker on Sunday night and went through the house and succeeded in getting about a dollar in money. Mr. Tucker went to Kensal in the evening and it would appear that the burglar was acquainted with this fact. Mrs. Tucker heard him walking and asked him what he wanted and he informed her that he wanted a light. For a short time she thought it was her brother who is stopping here but she soon discovered that she was mistaken and about this time the burglar made his escape.
