Rev. C. W. and Mrs. Collinge have a fine six weeks old boy that has not yet been labelled or named, consequently several of our young ladies want to have the honor of naming the baby. At a recent pow wow of the young ladies the matter was discussed and they each expressed themselves as follows: Nancy Cain: "George is a sweet name good enough for me." Allie Collinge: "I don't like George I think Archie is a lovely name." Ava McDonald: "Eh! That will pass but if you want a name with some style to it, give me Herbert." Ollie Langford: "Such common names I think Russell beats them all." At this point the boys came along to take the girls for a sleigh ride, and the child is still without a name.
