

---

Sam Langford was found lying by the railroad track unconscious Tuesday morning. He had grabbed a cake of ice in a car which he was unloading, when the tongs slipped and he fell from the car striking his head on another piece of ice with such force that it rendered him unconscious. He was picked up and carried to Marquardt's restaurant and attended to by Dr. Kerr. We are pleased to say that no bones were broken and that Sam is about all right again.

---