

---

While George Pratt was coming town to Monday, he slipped under the wagon and broke his arm. It seems that he and Frank Retzlaff were walking along side of the wagon and were fooling, when the horses started to run and George sprang at the wagon and slipped and the wagon run over him breaking his arm above the elbow. Two of his toes on one foot were also badly bruised.

---