

The citizens of Cooperstown were considerably startled Wednesday noon by the intelligence that Harvey Trulson, the four year old son of Tom Trulson, had disappeared the previous day and in spite of the most energetic search of Mr. Trulson and his neighbors had not yet been found. Half an hour later over thirty rigs had joined the hunt for the lost boy. About four o'clock news was brought that the boy had been found at P. Vofflestad's place, seven miles south of town. It appears that the boy had started for Mr. Trulson's tree claim two and half miles east of S. B. Langford's—started to go to town, passing through several fields of grain, and without a road. He was seen at Langford's late in the afternoon, and about 8 p. m. by Mr. Lockton, whose horse he frightened, not over a mile and a half from town. Then it seems he turned and proceeded south, reaching the place where he was first seen about ten o'clock the next morning. The boy who first saw him did not know the little fellow had been out all night and had had nothing to eat or drink since the morning before, and so just told him to follow after his plow, but the poor boy soon fell down overcome by fatigue. However, when dinner time came he got up and came along to Mr. Vofflestad's house, and after partaking of some refreshments, was none the worse for his twelve mile walk excepting that he was very foot-
