Last Friday night Samuel Smith, an aged resident of northern Wells county was caught away from home by that blinding snow storm and evidently wandered for hours trying to find habitation, but finally succumbed to the elements and when found was frozen stiff sitting in the wagon with hands run inside his coat. The team had been unhitched and were not frozen but had become so famished with hunger as to devour the bark of sapplings in the ravine where the unfortunate victim met his fate. A constant search has been made since last Saturday for Mr. Smith and his body was not found until Wednesday afternoon.—New Rockford Transcript.
