

MARRIED.

At the residence of J. W. Fiero, in Hannaford, N. D., Sept. 26th, 1893, Edward Guest and Miss Cora Fiero, Rev. O. D. Purinton, officiating.

The guests, numbering about thirty, who had been invited to participate in this happy event, which was one of the most beautiful home weddings it has been our lot to witness, were assembled a little before eight o'clock in the evening, in the parlors of Mr. Fiero's pleasant home. The house was prettily decorated with flowers and growing plants. Roses smiled at us from mantels and tables. The air was fragrant with their perfume, making us forget we were still in "frozen Dakota." The guests had not long to wait. The bridal party, Miss Belle Merryman acting as bridesmaid, and A. M. Sinclair as best man, entering the room, taking their places before Mr. Purinton, were in a most solemn and impressive manner pronounced man and wife after a beautiful marriage form. The bride is a sister of our well known and much respected fellow townsman, J. W. Fiero, and a young lady of fine character and accomplishments and has served in our public schools, for a number of years, as an efficient and popular teacher. She was dressed in cream cashmere, with lace and ribbon garniture, her only ornaments, as well as those of her bridesmaid, being natural roses. Mr. Guest is one of our rising young men, for several years a citizen of Dakota, and is highly esteemed by a large circle of warm friends. After the ceremony was concluded and hearty congratulations had been offered, the party proceeded to the dining room, where a delicious repast awaited them. Tables fairly groaned 'neath their burden of refreshments, and the happy guests, after doing justice to the dainties spread before them, once more repaired to the parlors, thoroughly enjoying the pleasant hospitalities so bountifully offered by Mr. and Mrs. Fiero. The gifts were many and beautiful and were duly appreciated by the happy couple, who expect to leave the following week for an extended tour of "The Great Fair," followed by the best wishes of their many friends. ***
