John Syvertson has played the boys a sly trick. He built a fine residence ostensibly for the purpose of his sister keeping house for the Syvertson Bros., announced his trip after her, when lo and behold on the evening of the second of July, when the boys were down to the lake, he came back with a young lady by the name of Tilda Nelson, whom he had married at Merillan, Wisconsin, a few days previously, and introduced her to the few left in town as his bride. We offer hearty congratulations and as he has done the handsome thing by the boys we will try and forget good naturedly the "sly trick."—Jamestown Alert.
