Andrew Nelson Setvick, of Lee, froze both his feet a week ago Tuesday. His feet were frozen right up to the ankle and several toes will have to be amputated. He claims that he had been to Gouldthrite's mill and that a friend treated him to alcohol and he started for home. When he got a short distance from the mill the alcohol got in its work and that is the last he realized for a few hours. He slept out on the prairie all night with the above result. This is another of hundreds of just such cases caused by indulging too freely of the wine when it is red—and just for the stomach's sake.
