

---

The little child of Ole K. Thune died in Kerr's drug store last Saturday afternoon. The little one had been sick for about a week and its parents brought it to town to see the doctor, but it was too late and the little life expired in a few minutes after it reached town.

---