Mrs. H. H. Robinson had a narrow escape last Friday. Herb is tearing down and rebuilding an old stone cellar for a granary and Mrs. Robinson went out to tell Herb to come to supper and she sat down on one side of the old wall which was 2x20 feet, and it caved in and pinned her underneath the falling mass of rocks and dirt, also one of his horses which Herb had hitched to the scraper. Mrs. Robinson escaped without any broken limbs but with some awful bruises and almost broke her left limb between the knee and ankle. It is expected she will be all right in a few days.—
