Al. Shue experienced a runaway Tuesday afternoon and got fired from his buggy head first into the middle of the road and received a few cuts and bruises but no broken bones. One of the ponies he was driving balked at the barn and in starting the hook on one of the whiffletrees got broken and that let the pole down and away went the team around the corner by the old Newel building and then turned across the corner of Syverson's sidewalk and finally upset the buggy and Al. in front of the postoffice. The ponies then freed themselves from the buggy and dashed around the corner into the barn. The buggy was uninjured. It was a lucky runaway all around.
