

The police department of the city received a phone message from Casselton last night, asking the police authorities to keep a sharp lookout for a man who was wanted at hope, in Steele county on the charge of committing a murder on election day. No definite particulars could be learned except that a murder had been committed. The man wanted is named Jas. Curry and left a bicycle at the G N depot at Casselton last night.—Argus.

We understand that the man was stabbed with a pitchfork by Curry, the two of them getting into a dispute over something. At last reports the victim was getting better with hopes of recovery. The Curry mentioned is not the James Curry that we all know here, he is a young fellow about 18 years old. The last we heard he had not been caught.
