

P. M. Johnson was in town last Thursday and reports that a young cyclone struck his place the Friday previous, picking up his barn and carrying it quite a distance. He had six head of horses in the building at the time and none of them were injured. The barn was picked up slick and clean and the horses left without a shelter.