

Ole Thorn, of Jessie, was subject to a very painful accident last Wednesday, while reaching for a bolt-nut which lay between the concave teeth of his separator, while the machine was in motion. Mr. Thorn not realizing the closeness of the cylinder teeth, consequently had several of his fingers badly cut up. Mr. Thorn had his fingers cared for immediately, and is now getting along as well as can be expected.