

Obituary.

It again becomes the sad duty of the Courier to announce the sudden and unexpected death of one of our old citizens, Mrs. Benjamin K. Climie (nee Edith Brown) which occurred at the farm home of Mr. Climie last Monday afternoon at 3 p. m. Last Friday evening the deceased gave birth to a baby boy, but in doing so gave up her own life. Complications set in after the birth of the child that could not be overcome, and the spirit of the mother and less than a year old bride passed away, leaving a sorrowing husband and baby to mourn her demise. Her death was unexpected and while she was not getting along as well as could be expected, it did not occur to her friends that she must die. She passed away with scarcely a word. Edith G. Brown was born in Pennsylvania on Oct. 4, 1870, and would have been 30 years old had she lived until fall. She came to Coopers-town in the early eighties with her parents, and has grown up right here among the people of this community. She has always taken an active part in social and church work and for many years was a member of various church choirs. Of a cheerful, happy temperament she always took the part assigned to her either in church, social or domestic affairs cheerfully. On June 21, 1899, she was married to Mr. B. K. Climie. The advent of the little one into the family was one of happy expectation and delight, but the thought that the mother would be taken away was not contemplated. The Courier sincerely joins with its readers in extending heartfelt sympathy to the stricken husband and motherless babe, also to the family who have lost a dear one from the family circle. The funeral ceremonies occurred at the farm home Wednesday afternoon, Rev. H. M. Shouse preaching the sermon. The remains were laid to rest in the Coopers-town cemetery.
