

E. W. Everson had the dangerous experience of having his auto turn turtle with him last Friday. He was crossing the grade between the house and the barn at his place and came too near the edge so that the car skidded and turned over, bottom side up. With Mr. Everson in the car were Mrs. Everson and two of the girls. Mr. Everson was pinned underneath the steering wheel but luckily the back part of the car was partly held up by some stones so the ladies were able to get from underneath it. Fortunately no one was seriously hurt though somewhat bruised and badly shaken up.
