

Leo Hartwell, formerly of Dazey, but now employed in Farge, got into trouble there the other day as the result of a made-up murder story. After his repeated tales the police took him into custody and made an investigation. No trace of the supposed murder could be found and after spending a few hours in jail Hartwell confessed that it was a fake story.