

Sentinel: Jack Howden came in on the farm in Mabel last Thursday for a four-horse load of lumber, loaded up and drove to Rhodes ore where he was taking on some hardware, and, while doing so, slipped and fell from the tongue of the wagon. The horses were frightened and one of them kicked him in the head and then they started up and he was caught beneath the wheels of the wagon. One wheel passed over his body and one over his legs. His ribs were bent and cracked and his legs were squeezed and lacerated, but fortunately, his injuries were slight in comparison with what might have been expected from such a heavy load passing over him. The doctor says that he will soon be all right. We congratulate him on his narrow escape.
