

Hans Linning was badly hurt last Tuesday evening just as he was about to get ready to join a threshing outfit with a team of mules and a rack. The team started off before Mr. Linning had hold of the lines and in endeavoring to stop them he fell under the wagon and the wheels passed over him. He sustained quite severe injuries but was given prompt care and is now already able to be up and about.