M. O. Spicer spent Tuesday in Cooperstown on business.

Grandpa Cowger is around on our streets again, and as spry as ever.

Joe Nelson has been planning a trip to Hot Springs this week for his health.

Interest in basketball is being resurrected at the school, if we may judge by appearances on the grounds.

Miss Quamme was in Cooperstown Sunday and Monday, Miss Grettie Little substituting for her in the primary department.

Miss Annie Nelson, who has been attending school in Minneapolis this year is seriously sick at that place with typhoid fever.

Rev. Kinley leaves this week, temporarily, for the Souris farm. He expects to return here and at least finish up the conference year.

Several specimens of mineral ores from the northeast corner of Siberia were recently added to Mr. Westergaard's collection of minerals which has been exhibited in a glass show case in the school during the year.

The question for debate for May 1 is, "Resolved, that a lawyer is justified in defending a case that he knows is wrong." In spite of untoward weather and the terrible mud the attendance and interest have been very encouraging.

The pastor and the goodly number who assembled at the M. E. church last Sunday evening were disappointed to hear that Presiding Elder Moore could not be here, as had been announced. He is again expected in May.

At the last meeting of the Dazey literary association it was decided by a vote of 2 to 1 that women have greater mental capacity than men. This rather neutralizes the decision of the week before that women should not be allowed to vote on political questions.

A batch of about fifty new books have been received for the school library last week. Much interest has been manifested in the library and the books are being eagerly read. There will be nearly two hundred volumes as a monument to this and the previous year's labors.
