

DAZEY.

And such walking!

The land office with its new netting looks like business.

Geo. G. Lee left for Hot Springs, S. D., last Saturday.

Mrs. Jas. Wright left on Monday for her farm near Hannaford.

April, and hogs still parading the sidewalk, regardless of the herd law.

Now the value of sidewalks and street improvements can be appreciated.

We expect soon to see the sails of pleasure yachts on Lake Stove east of town.

A. D. Rick, who has been stopping with Geo. G. Lee, has departed for the Black Hills country.

Mrs. Wright has rented her house to a Valley City contractor who will move into it this spring.

The supporters of the M. E. church contemplate extensive improvements on the church building in the spring.

Friday was about the stormiest, "blizzardiest," measliest day of the winter. And of course there was no train.

The snow storm has delayed spring work probably over a week. Was this the "killing frost" that had been predicted for April?

Rev. Kinley has been invited to return, when he is through with his stay on the claim. He will in all probability accept the invitation.

Albert A. Gad left for McHenry, Saturday, but he changed his mind on the matter when he reached the derailed snow plow near Binford.

Two daughters of James Brennon arrived on Saturday's belated train. They will take charge of Mr. Brennon's household during the summer.

Elmer Hegelston has come back to Dazey after spending the winter at Red Lake, Minnesota. He reports no place like North Dakota, and is very anxious to get his folks to move out here.

Miss Donelda Hamlin has secured a school over in Cass county, which she will soon commence to teach. Miss Hamlin left here last Monday evening.

Herman Hoffmann and wife and five children arrived here Thursday from Vandalia, Illinois. The storm kept them in town until the beginning of the week.

Mrs. Lew Daly came up from Valley City Monday to attend to her father, W. D. Cowger, who has been confined to his house with illness the past couple of weeks.

O. T. Olson returned Saturday from his old home in Waukesha county, Minnesota, where he attended the funeral of his mother. His friends extend their sympathy at his loss.

Cooper Street has had a number of huge snow drifts that about stopped navigation; while Third Avenue has been completely blocked to everything but snowshoes—or number twelves.

A restaurant has opened in the Wilson building under the management of Smith Davis and Theodore Kjelson. Miss Davis and Miss Kjelson, sisters of the proprietors, will look after the culinary department.

A move has been made toward incorporation, and candidates for city offices are already coming forward. Some are considering the securing of franchises for putting in telephone system and electric light plant.

Rooms are scarce as hen's teeth here now. It is to be hoped that plenty of building will be done during the summer, so that none of our population will have to winter it in the haylofts or the attics.

At the Republican caucus last Thursday, the following delegates were selected to go to the county convention: E. A. Duff, J. E. Jacobsen, Frank Beals, Andrew Thurston, L. Peterson, and Knudson. Mr. Duff and Mr. Jacobsen being unable to attend, Nels Larson went as their proxy.