

DAZEY.

Our friend, C. M. Creel, is running a meat wagon and is doing well.

Our enterprising citizen, Andrew Thurston, is the first to start a threshing rig.

Sheriff Oppegard was in town over Sunday last; it is needless to say that all were good.

What grain has been threshed has yielded well; as much as 22 bushels to the acre have been threshed.

John Wallbridge has at last rented a house and is now a permanent fixture. All are glad to have a first class carpenter located in the town.

There has been some talk of help being scarce this fall, though at the present time there seems to be no scarcity of men. The only trouble is, that they want twenty-five cents more all the time than is being paid; consequently we have a goodly pot gang.

We have a Ladies Aid that would do credit to a larger sized town. Last year they bought an organ, besides paying some of the minister's salary; this year they rented a piece of land and in some manner got it seeded and in the same manner got it cut and threshed; the yield was good.

Last week a meeting was called of the citizens for the purpose of hearing the reading of the committee of last year, and the appointing of a police man for a period of some three months or such time as the committee may elect, and in the meantime electing a new committee, which is as follows: Nels Larson, E. A. Duff and R. E. Lee.

Dazey is indeed taking on a spirit of growth this season. Residences as follows have been erected, which cost from two to four thousand dollars each: E. A. Duff, Fred Kruger, W. H. Smith and O. T. Olson. Nels Larson has veneered his store, which makes a good substantial building; Elmer Oppegard is building a brick butcher shop. The only complaint that we have heard is, that Louis Pederson has painted his house a true Irish green.
