Threshing in this locality was delayed all last week no account of the rains. The weather opened up fair on Monday and several machines started to thresh, that day. Work is progressing nicely and the yield as a rule is better than anticipated.

Engbrecht Mickelson completed a fine large barn on his farm last week, and then extended an invitation to his many friends to come out on Saturday night and assist him in dedicating it. The turnout was good and after enjoying dancing and refreshments for a few hours, adjourned, leaving with friend Mickelson, their very best wishes for his health and happiness.

The chicken shooting season opened on Tuesday with perfect weather, making it very enticing to the lover of the field. All the local sportsmen were out by and before day-light, hurrying for the abode of the defenceless chicken, where, perchance he might be stormed and taken while asleep. Several "ten-strikes" were reported, though no man shot more than twenty-five.

The Larson block is almost completed. The plate glass front was put
