

Death came into our midst last Saturday and claimed for its victim Donald McFadgen. His death was almost unexpected, though on June 15 he had undergone a very difficult operation for appendicitis, but was to all appearances on the road to recovery till Thursday afternoon a change for the worse took place and Friday morning he departed this life, happy in the thought that he was going to the home where suffering and sorrow is unknown. He leaves a young wife and little son, a father, mother, four sisters and three brothers to mourn their loss. A host of relatives and loving friends gathered at his father's home Sunday afternoon to pay a last sad tribute, and he was laid to rest under the shade tree a few rods from the home he had loved so well. The entire community will mourn him, and join in extending their sympathy to the bereaved ones.
